to approach their solutions in an orderly fashion are fundamental to successful disease control and prevention. An effective public investment program depends to a large extent on the ability of the public sector to identify and formulate projects which are technically, economically, financially, environmentally and managerially sound to achieve national and sectoral objectives and priorities. Investment in public projects, which is the main instrument of growth and development, has fallen in many countries across Eastern Europe. Absence of well-prepared project proposals results in the lack of funding from international financial institutions such as the World Bank (IBRD), European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD), European Investment Bank (EIB) and others. Therefore, this training Program is designed to improve the capacity of preparing such project plans and studies, so that the projects can attract funding from national and international financing agencies.
