1. GENERAL CONSIDERATIONS

changes in Europe in the early 1990s, primarily to the countries of South East and Central Europe and the countries formed on the territory of the former Soviet Union, while devoting special attention to the Balkan region, the most underdeveloped and volatile part of Europe.

The ECPD was operating and continues to do so in rather specific conditions affecting its activities. Its headquarters are in the center of South East Europe, which was for many years faced, besides lagging behind in terms of economic development, with at least two challenging circumstances: international sanctions imposed on the host country of ECPD and the greatest war conflicts in Europe since WWII. Economic and social implications of these events were enormous and have not been entirely overcome until present date, especially in terms of inter-ethnic, inter-religious-and inter-state relations. Unfortunately, stable peace and sustainable development have not yet been secured since the end of the war conflicts. Based on the experience from the past period, ECPD will have to show resourcefulness in finding the ways how to proceed successfully towards promotion of peace, development and strengthening international cooperation in Europe.

Finally, it should be emphasized that, in 2023, the ECPD celebrated the Jubilee of 40 years of ECPD activities, which was marked by the ECPD International Conference “The Future is to Be Invented” and the ECPD Global Youth Forum “Youth Power for the Common Future”, held on October 28th and 29th in Belgrade. Both the International Conference and the Global Youth Forum were a complete success and confirmed the continuity, role, importance and prestige of ECPD University for Peace United Nations, bringing together the most prominent scientists, politicians and diplomats and a large number of young future leaders from different parts of the world, from China to Mexico.
